FORD WAS THE KOKUA

neer six. On the smallest of these boards—i. e., one six feet long and eighteen inches wide—the heaviest man may stand, if he knows how, while the force of the wave is behind him; but in quiet waters a child may sink it.

Before the big waves can be caught—the water where they form is twelve feet deep—it is necessary to develop muscles in the arms and shoulders that will propel the board at a speed for a second at least, equal to that of the forward motion at the base of the advancing billow; if this is accomplished, the board is lifted up and carried forward at a blinding speed, and it then becomes a matter of strength in holding on and skill in balancing the frail plank, for even the most expert may slip.

If the rider is confident enough, he may start his own board by standing beside it and giving it a forward shove, at the right moment, just as the wave is upon him. Many, many times probably he will roll over, but at last the knack of balancing comes to him, and he is ready to try to stand upon his board while it is in full forward motion, not such a difficult feat after all, in the small surf where the waves are not more than two or three feet high at most. His real trials commence when he deserts the shallows and strikes out for the deep.

The Supreme Moment.

It takes muscle and endurance, lying upon a bit of plank with only an inch or two of the bow above water, to paddle a mile out to where the waves form. There is half a minute of violent effort, then several seconds of supreme effort, the board begins to rise upon the wall of water, and then comes the fight to keep it from floating above the crest and sinking back in the rear—of a lost wave. Even on the summit of the billow all is not lost; a few powerful strokes you give with your face flat on the board, then as you feel your feet slightly tilt upward, down come the arms in a twinkling until the hands grasp the board amidship in a grip of iron, the feet are drawn up to the center of the board with a quick, convulsive motion, and you leap to your feet, erect and balanced—if you fail, the board flies from under you and is tossed in air. But if the wave is yours, there is a thrill like none other in all the world as you stand upon its crest and look down into the hollow, green valley below you. As the wave curls and is about to break, the strongest foot is put forward to beat the bow down in a slanting direction and a quick turn given to the whole body, so that the board swerves and descends the hill of green on the bias.

Today Judges of the Supreme Court in Hawaii, with their wives and daughters, ex-Governors and their families, and the greater portion of the prominent business men are surfboard enthusiasts, while the schoolboys and girls of Honolulu, now that they have their separate bathhouses, canoes, and surfboard racks, spend much time in the water, and at the recent surfing carnival in honor of the visit of the American battleship and later of the cruiser fleet, practically every prize offered for those most expert in Hawaiian water sports were won by white boys and girls, who have only recently mastered the art that was for so long believed to be possible of acquirement only by the native-born, dark-skinned Hawaiians.

At the Christmas contest, for the third time a white boy, now fourteen years of age, won the medal given to the most expert surfboarder; he came in a hundred yards before a monster roller standing on his head.

The white man and boy are doing much in Hawaii to develop the art of surfing. Games and feats never dreamed of by the native are being tried. Nowadays the small white boy anchors an inflated bladder where the waves roll by at their best, invites his companions to take out sharpened reed spears and contest with him in puncturing the target, the rule of the game being that the spear must be thrown while the spearsman is actually standing on his board. At night acetylene lamps are strapped to the bow of the boards, and the small boys and even men go out to ride the breakers, only their white-suited bodies being seen as they stand on the waves in a circle of light. This was one of the features of a recent night water carnival at Waikiki. And again a white American boy came in standing on his hands in the glow of a red signal light attached to his board. He had carried matches out in his skull-cap, and lighted his torch just before he caught the wave he wanted.

Mail orderlies from the fleet, attention! 200 subjects in Hawaiian postal cards at wholesale. Souvenirs. Hawaii & South Seas Curio Co., Young building, Bishop street, next door to Cable office.

HAWAIIAN GAZETTE LUAU

balls I had managed to get a man as far as second base. The fans roared hard. They called me names. But that is the lot of the umpire. Finally Charlie Crane came to bat and swatted a peach of a bingle. I was so taken up with the newspaper end of the thing that I forgot to look when he stole second. Henry Chillingworth said that he was out. That put my back up and he was safe.

Then Jimmie Williams hit out a grand one. It probably was foul but it was too near to be called that way. It was a home run and the boss of the business office romped while Jimmie did the same.

That won the game for the Wrong Fords (this by severe application to the program). Then the fans and others were divided into two sections. Those who liked me and those who did not. Luckily the former were in the majority. At any rate I had the joy of being in the front row of the picture as "The man who won the game," Auwe.

Clerks of the Course Busy.

After the baseball there were many athletic events. The various clerks of the course had a hard time to get the girls to run in the first race. But, when they did get going there was a charming array of beauty at the other end of the line, and dainty Miss Clara Pomroy romped in a winner by two lengths and then some.

Then there was a three-legged race and the Hopper-Soares combination passed over the line easy winners. After that the fat man's race was called and Charlie Crane, with a pillow stuffed inside his shirt, had the gall to enter. He won easily.

Alec Hospitable.

About this time Alec, caretaker of the Hawaii, came round and whispered that he had a sailing boat at the disposal of the visitors. He was directed to get her to the wharf as soon as possible, and he did.

Then Mr. Taylor kindly took my place as judge and I made for the sailboat. Nearly all the girls, if not all, had a sail on the bay and a touch of sunburn and some strain on the muscles with hauling sheets was more than repaid by the pleasure that the charming live-ballast took in the getting out on the water.

One Ezra Crane, about the height of a baseball bat and the winner of one by running very fast, also a baseball, came along as first mate and hauled on those jib-sheets to beat the band. Very soon he will be almost as crazy a yachtsman as others I could mention.

The Big Event.

While the women were having a good time on the water the other races were being pulled off. And those races were certainly run to the limit. Then came the big luau. The mats, which looked like nothing so much as a cricket pitch, insisted on blowing up and over the ground until the poi dishes were set.

Then came long strings of delicious things to eat. A real Hawaiian luau and everybody sitting on the grass in proper style. There was kokua at the big shed under the supervision of the paymaster and the ice lasted till the very end.

Finally there were photographs taken of the whole bunch, and different sections of the whole bunch. The Hoodoo kid, A. P. Taylor, of course, had to be there when the bench gave way and he strained his ankle. If he were walking within fifteen miles of a railroad accident a piece of the smoke stack would fly through the air and soak him on the brain-container.

Homeward Bound.

The train left the Peninsula about the time that it ought to have done, namely 4:20 p. m. The band played while the train was waiting to move, as it had done all the afternoon and most of the morning for dancing. The pavilion floor was in great shape and the Hawaii yacht clubhouse was placed at the disposal of the Hawaiian Gazette, by courtesy of Commodore Wilder. Alec, Lundquist was round all day long to see what he could do for the pleasure and comfort of the visitors and, apart from putting his sailboat at the service of the "Tiser people, he was a much-needed and appreciated Deus Machinarius in many other ways.

Those Who Were There.

Of those who were there, of the brilliant array of reporters, of the other mere addenda to a newspaper's mechanism, much might be written. Therefore let me mention no names but state in conclusion that the big Hawaiian Gazette luau was one great and unqualified success.

The official results of the races were:
1. Girls' race, Clara Louise Pomroy.
2. Three-legged race, Hopper-Soares.
3. Fat men's race, Chas. Crane.
4. Women's race, Miss Macaulay.
5. Backward running race, Soares.
6. Boys' race, Ezra Crane.
7. Girls' race, Bernice Correa.
8. Boys' race, Willie Maxwell.
9. 100-yard dash, Jimmie Williams, time 9 secs.
10. Children's race, Gladys Traut and James Fernandez.
11. Married men's race, Henry Herriek.

LOCAL BREVITIES.

It is rumored that M. F. Prosser may be appointed to fill the vacancy on the Board of Public Instruction created by the resignation of A. F. Judd.

Cecil Brown, administrator of the estate of the late W. C. Pennecook, has filed in the circuit court a petition for leave to sell off part of the real and personal property of the estate to pay certain claims against the latter. Claims have been presented amounting to $157,679.42, of which amount $59,000 is secured by land mortgages.

THE BRINCKERHOFF ESTATE.

The appraisal of the estate of the late Mrs. Nellie White Brinckerhoff was filed in the Circuit Court yesterday. It agrees very closely with the inventory filed a few days previously. The latter was $223,633.32, while the appraisal makes the value of the estate $221,854.32.

ARTISTIC MONEY.

"Money is money, not works of art," says an exchange, and the statement is true, whatever may be said of the grammar. Still, there is no good reason why a coin or a bank note should not be artistically correct and beautiful. Any coin, even the smallest, should be designed, first, with reference to its practical uses, but, second, and a close second, too, with the idea
